WHO IS RACHEL?

Rachel is a public interest attorney, community advocate, mother of four and former city councilor. She is passionate about the rights of America's workers, caregivers and families to see the benefits of their tax dollars and hard work in their own lives and communities.

WHAT ARE HER VALUES?

Rachel values her neighbors and prioritizes their needs for clean water, affordable utilities, good educations and single payer healthcare as services that they have already paid for.

Rachel doesn't take money from corporations, industries or PACs that support foreign governments because she is determined to represent the people of West Virginia.

Rachel believes in the whole Constitution and is committed to ensuring that the government respects all people and their Constitutional rights.

WHAT WILL SHE WORK ON IN THE SENATE?

Healthcare:
Americans pay enough to have accessible, affordable and excellent single payer healthcare.

Education:
Our tax dollars must be used fairly to provide the excellent public educational services that all of our children need to pursue the American Dream to their ability.

Water and Utilities:
Americans have paid enough to receive access to clean, drinkable water and reliable and reasonably priced utility services.

Affordability:
West Virginians have been exploited enough. We can't afford to pay higher prices because the government goes to war or allows corporate monopolies to fix prices.
